

Kissinger to Cairo on Israeli impasse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed today for Cairo and four other Arab capitals in a difficult bid to break a diplomatic impasse with Israel.

Kissinger took off amid indications that Egypt and Syria are stiffly resisting Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir's efforts to work out a prisoner exchange through the "good offices" of the United States.

Mrs. Meir left for home late Sunday after telling a group of Israeli correspondents at Blair House that negotiations with Egypt have not begun, even indirectly through the secretary of state. She said she had raised the prisoner issue with President Nixon, Kissinger and in "every single conversation" with U.S. officials while in Washington.

Kissinger stops first in Rabat, Morocco, and then Tunis, Tunisia, before reaching Cairo for conferences with President Anwar Sadat.

In Morocco today, progovernment newspapers praised Kissinger as a "pilgrim for peace" and "a man both of good will and imagination." These were the first favorable comments about a U.S. government official in Moroccan papers since the Middle East war broke out. Morocco has sent some units to fight with the Arabs.

Kissinger's visit to the Egyptian capital is particularly critical.

At that point Mrs. Meir will be reporting to the Israeli parliament on the results of her travels. The Egyptians may issue a parallel declaration that could reflect the stiff stance they were understood to have taken in five talks held last week in Washington by Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy with Nixon and Kissinger.

Later in the week the secretary of state goes on to Amman, Jordan, and Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to see King Hussein and King Faisal. From there he visits the Moslem countries of Iran and Pakistan and then heads finally for China and a visit postponed last month partly because of the Middle East war.

Kissinger has been a busy go-between, alternatively seeing Mrs. Meir and Fahmy. He also received Mohamed Zakaria Ismail, the deputy foreign minister of Syria, in the first significant contact in a year between the two countries, which have no diplomatic relations.

At the same time, Kissinger stayed in touch with Nixon at Key Biscayne, Fla., and talked with him by telephone for about 40 minutes Sunday morning. Kissinger also had a telephone conversation with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Speaking about the Soviets on national television Sunday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the United States faces a Soviet threat in the Mediterranean greater now than during the military alert of Oct. 25.

Jackson said the Soviet Union has 95 ships in the Mediterranean to our 60 and, "For the first time in the long imperial history of Russia they have naval infantry aboard the ships ... probably equivalent to a battalion, with landing craft off shore at this very hour.

"Now, to me, this is not indicative of detente, it is not indicative of cooperation. It is indicative of trouble and we have more trouble ahead of us," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Besides a release of prisoners, Mrs. Meir has stressed that Israel wants to see an end to the Egyptian blockade at the mouth of the Red Sea that is hampering import of petroleum.

In her talks she floated the idea of having Israeli troops return from the West Bank of the Suez Canal, while the encircled Egyptian 3rd army withdraws from the East bank. Another proposal she is understood to have discussed would be for Israel to open a corridor to the 20,000 Egyptian soldiers so they can receive food, water and medicine.

In these exploratory talks the United States is trying to nail down the cease-fire and prod Israel and her Arab neighbors on the path toward negotiating a permanent settlement. Syria has vowed that it will not negotiate with the Jewish state, but Joseph J. Sisco, the assistant secretary for the Middle East, probably will add Damascus to his own swing through several Middle East countries, including Israel, next week.

Meanwhile, in Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Egyptian blockade at the Bab El Mandab straits leading to the Red Sea could become "very dangerous" if a political solution was not found soon. He spoke to newsmen before boarding a plane for an official visit to Romania, the only Communist state to maintain friendly relations with Israel.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Sunday that he expected Egypt to renew fighting on the Suez Canal front.

"The Egyptians are concentrating forces and ... we have to realize the war is not yet over," Dayan said.

Arabs announce new oil production cuts

KUWAIT (AP) — The Arab oil nations announced new production cuts today in their oil offensive against supporters of Israel but said "friendly countries" would not be affected.

The 10-member Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) announced production would be reduced this month by 25 per cent of the September output and by five per cent of the November output in December.

But the announcement after a seven-hour meeting of the nations' oil ministers said the 25 per cent reduction would include the oil already cut off by the embargos against the United States and the Netherlands. Since cuts in Arab oil production have reached more than four million barrels a day, or 20 per cent of the September production, it appeared that the new November cut actually would come to only five per cent, or one million barrels a day.

The cuts "shall not affect the share of those friendly countries that import oil from Arab countries," the statement said. "Their share will be based on the average of their imports for the first nine months of 1973."

The statement did not specify which countries were "friendly," but it was assumed this category included France and Spain, which have been openly sympathetic with the Arab position against Israel.

The standing of Britain is uncertain, and the Arabs have accused West Germany of abetting U.S. supply shipments to Israel. Japan, which imports 86 per cent of its oil from the Middle East, is under growing pressure to take a clear stand on the side of the Arabs.

The new cuts have no effect on the oil situation in the United States since all 10 nations already have stopped all shipment of oil to America. Five of the nations also have stopped shipping to the Netherlands.

Kuwait officials said a major question at the meeting was how to ship oil to friends and prevent their sharing it with enemies.

Watergate expected factor in elections

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's voters go to the polls Tuesday in scattered mayoral and gubernatorial elections, and the Watergate affair is expected to be a factor in some of the voting.

New York City's mayoral race winds up today with a burst of neighborhood campaigning by the four major candidates. Other major mayoral elections are in Minneapolis, Detroit and Cleveland.

New Jersey's two major gubernatorial candidates have fought a bitter campaign that some observers have called an indicator of voter reaction to the Watergate disclosures.

A state income tax has been a major issue in the campaign. Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., the Republican candidate, opposed it, but Brendan T. Byrne, his Democratic opponent, refused to rule it out.

There is only one other gubernatorial contest. In Virginia Lt. Gov. Henry Howell, running as an independent, faces former Gov. Mills Godwin, a conservative Republican. Watergate is not counted as an important issue.

Minneapolis Mayor Charles Stenvig, who breezed to two earlier victories while plugging for "law and order," is expected to win a third term. Democratic Farm-Labor candidate Albert Hofstede claimed his own survey gave him a slight lead over independent Stenvig.

Detroit will select a new mayor in a nonpartisan election. The choices are a black politician and a white policeman, who waged their campaigns on promises to rid the nation's fifth largest city of crime and corruption.

The Detroit News, which endorsed John F. Nichols, reported its final pre-election poll—taken last week—showed the former police commissioner trailing his opponent, State Sen. Coleman Young, by 5 per cent. Some political observers said the race was so close the victor might be determined by the weather.

In Cleveland, incumbent Mayor Ralph J. Perk, a Republican, faces only one candidate on the ballot, Democratic city councilwoman Mercedes Cotner. The nonpartisan election has been fought along party lines despite its official status.

New York City Comptroller Abraham D. Beame was the heavy favorite to win the mayoral race in that city in an election expected to attract two million to three million voters. Beame is running against three other candidates to succeed Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Sexual involvement with officers probed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — She would wave and get policemen to stop their cars, talk a little and then sometimes have sex with them, says a teen-age blonde. "They were real sweet to me," she adds.

Charlotte Tyler, 19, of Paris, Ark., told reporters Sunday of sexual involvement with officers, not only in Memphis, but also in Arkansas and Missouri.

"I'm not ashamed about nothing," she said. Police Director Jay W. Hubbard said hours of polygraph tests confirmed the young woman's allegations, "including some of the more serious ones."

Asked how many officers she'd been involved with in Memphis after her arrival Sept. 1, she said, "I do not want to state it. No offense."

Wearing a metallic gold jump suit with a cowboy belt around the waist, Mrs. Tyler said, "I didn't want to get them in trouble."

Police sources have said that up to 200 officers on the 1,100-man force may be involved, but Hubbard has said he believes it is more like 20.

Mrs. Tyler allowed reporters, minus cameras and recorders, into her police-acquired motel suite, where officers said they had been questioning her for three days. She was flanked by a priest, two matrons and investigators. She said she is divorced and the mother of a 2-year-old daughter being cared for by her parents.

Inspector H. H. Leatherwood, head of the Internal Affairs Bureau, said Mrs. Tyler gave names of officers and took lie detector tests after saying she wanted to assist police in answering questions.

Mrs. Tyler said she would like to get on a police department and work in the vice squad. "I bet I know more about it than a lot of people," she said.

She declined to say whether she had sexual encounters in police stations, where Leatherwood said she sometimes was around at roll call. Mrs. Tyler responded to a question, "In squad cars? Some."

She said she likes officers because "they are well trained, they know their work, they are good people."

New York City firemen threaten 'total strike'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York City firemen voted today to begin a "total strike" on Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. EST if a contract isn't agreed upon by then. The National Guard was called up in Milwaukee, Wis., to replace firemen who haven't come to work because of a labor dispute.

New York firemen were to have gone out at 9 a.m. today, in defiance of a state law prohibiting strikes by municipal employees. But when the strike deadline came, negotiations were still in progress and the fire fighters went to work normally.

Later, at a meeting of the Uniformed Firefighters Assn., the new strike deadline was voted.

Ford blasts acts that discredited administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford said today it was tragic "that the stupid illegal acts of a handful of people" had discredited the Nixon administration.

Ford told a Senate committee examining his qualifications to become vice president that he thought President Nixon could recover from Watergate and finish his second term with a good record.

"I think he can," Ford said. "But it's going to take a lot of help from a lot of people."

Members of the Senate Rules Committee questioned Ford closely about his relationship with a former Washington lobbyist, but as he neared the end of his second day as a witness, the senators concentrated more on his views of presidential leadership.

Ford was asked what personal characteristics he thought a president needed. "He has to be a person of great truthfulness and the people have to believe he is truthful," Ford said.

He also said a President must lead by personal example, exhibiting high moral and ethical standards.

He praised Nixon for "a superb job" in foreign affairs, but conceded that the Watergate affair had seriously damaged the President domestically.

Ford said he felt Nixon had nothing to do with the planning and execution of the break-in of Democratic headquarters that sparked the Watergate investigation, but that the President had an immediate need to clean up all questions relating to it.

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political saboteur Donald H. Segretti was sentenced Monday to serve six months in a minimum security institution for violating federal laws in the 1972 election campaign.

Segretti, who was financed by Nixon campaign funds, had pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to three federal misdemeanor counts arising from his activity in last year's Democratic presidential primary in Florida.

The lobbyist, Robert N. Winter-berger, has written a book which he calls "an insider's view of corruption in Washington." It portrays the author as a close associate of Ford, the House Republican leader.

Ford denied all allegations of wrongdoing in his relations with Winter-berger. At the opening session of his confirmation hearings last week he said he was "duped" by Winter-berger, who had been introduced to him by close friends from Michigan.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the Senate Rules Committee, asked Ford about his visit to a New York doctor, Arnold Hutschnecker, which was arranged by Winter-berger.

Watergate major Nixon weekend topic

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon neared the end today of a busy weekend of decision-making that focused on Watergate and his precarious personal position, pending energy conservation proposals, and the search for a Middle East peace.

While spokesmen said repeatedly that Nixon "has absolutely no intention of resigning," one source acknowledged that the small official party here concentrated much of its weekend thinking on the leadership crisis that has prompted a rash of public suggestions that the President step down.

Of immediate concern was the problem of countering public skepticism about White House claims that no recordings were made of key Nixon conversations last year for which tapes had been subpoenaed.

As demands that Nixon resign came from publications and politicians, including Republican Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts, a presidential Ford said he finally paid one brief visit to Dr. Hutschnecker "in order to get rid of Mr. Winter-berger's persistent request."

"If you knew Mr. Winter-berger, I think you would understand how I finally decided to see the doctor," Ford said.

He said he merely had a conversation with Dr. Hutschnecker about the role of leadership in the American political system.

Ford said Winter-berger brought several cases he was interested in to Ford's attention, but in only one instance did Ford or his staff perform the service requested.

spokesman said Nixon did not intend to quit. Brooke, speaking on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" program, was the first Republican senator to openly call for Nixon's resignation.

He said he "reluctantly came to the conclusion" that Nixon must resign because there was "no question President Nixon has lost his effectiveness as a leader of this country, mainly because he has lost the confidence of the people of this country."

Meanwhile, in its first editorial in its 50-year history, Time magazine said in this week's issue that Nixon has "irretrievably lost ... his ability to govern effectively" and should resign.

Across the nation, some newspapers editorialized for his resignation, while others continued to support Nixon. Among those calling for him to step down were The New York Times, and the Detroit News, Denver Post and Atlanta Journal, three newspapers that had supported Nixon in the past.

DEATH NOTICES

Mrs. Flossie R. Morton

Mrs. Flossie R. Morton, 69, 1805 East 16th, died at her home at 2 a.m. Monday. She had been ill for several weeks.

She was born in Morgan County, May 8, 1904, daughter of the late Noah and Millie Doll Fowler Moon. She was married March 18, 1923, to James P. Morton. They lived most of their married life in Sedalia and he preceded her in death Sept. 12, 1972.

Mrs. Morton was a member of the East Sedalia Baptist Church.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William C. (Vera) Weseloh, 1908 South Washington; one sister, Mrs. John (Opal) Weicken, Versailles; two brothers, Walker Moon, Smithton; John A. Moon, Versailles; two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Ewing Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Milton I. Elmore, pastor of the East Sedalia Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

Charles Wilton Whitney

Funeral services for Charles (Ace) Wilton Whitney, 62, 313 West Johnson, who died at his home Saturday morning, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Taylor Chapel Methodist Church with the Rev. T. E. Davis officiating.

Burial will be in Mount Pleasant Cemetery in Sedalia.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Alexander Funeral Home.

Arbitration group has no meeting set

Four members of an arbitration board that will hear the Pettis County Court's dispute with County Firefighters Local 2228 have made no plans to meet yet, one of the board members said Monday.

"We haven't contacted each other yet, as far as I know," said James Harvey, farm representative at Union Savings Bank. "I don't really know who is going to call us together."

The board was appointed by the court Tuesday to arbitrate the dispute, which centers on the court's Sept. 12 decision to fire county firefighter Danny Taylor, LaMonte, a union member.

Other members of the board are Herb Ford, business representative for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 124 in Kansas City; Ray Hendricks, president of the Sedalia Federation of Labor; and Larry McRoy, manager of Sedalia Computer Services.

Before the board sets a hearing date, it must select another person to serve as chairman. No progress has been made to select this fifth board member, Harvey indicated.

The county court had previously indicated that it would not become involved in the arbitration proceedings once the board was named.

UNICEF drive nets over $800

A total of $801.20 was collected by area youngsters participating in the annual "trick-or-treat for UNICEF" drive held recently in Pettis County, it was reported Monday.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Mark Miller, chairman of the youth committee of the Sedalia-Pettis County Minister's Association, which sponsored the event. UNICEF is the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. Miller expressed the group's appreciation at the efforts of the many volunteers.

Sedalia police capture Training School escapee

A 16-year-old escapee from the State Training School for Boys at Boonville was apprehended by police Sunday morning at the railroad crossing on Clarendon Road.

According to the police report the youth "hopped" the freight in Boonville and was asked to get off by train officials but refused. When the train reached Sedalia, about 6 a.m., the train conductor called police and asked them to remove the youth from the train.

The boy was taken from the train by police and, when questioned, admitted that he had escaped from Boonville. Police verified the youth's admission with Boonville and turned the escapee over to the Pettis County Sheriff's Department where he is being detained until authorities from Boonville arrive.

Two assault incidents over the weekend are currently under investigation by police. James McNeal, 17, 815 East 16th told police that he was walking south on Dal-Whi-Mo shortly before 2 a.m. Sunday when two youths jumped from the bushes near Sixth Street, knocked him down and demanded money. McNeal said that he refused and was struck again by the two who then took his billfold and escaped on foot.

A nine-year-old Sedalia boy was sprayed in the eyes with a chemical described by police as "Hot Shot Starter Fluid" when he refused to give some bubblegum to an older youth in the 100 block of South Engineer Saturday evening.

The youngster was reportedly walking with friends shortly before 7 p.m. Saturday when a youth approached and told the boy to give him some of his bubblegum. The boy refused and was threatened with a spray can. He was reportedly asked a

Victims of fatal crash are identified

The State Highway Patrol has identified the three persons who were killed about 10 p.m. Saturday in the two-car collision north of Sedalia as residents of the Kansas City area.

Pronounced dead at the scene were James Orrell, 51, of the Kansas City suburb of Lake Lotawanna; Richard Rice, 49, and Betty Marie Quigley, 44, both of Kansas City. Rice and Betty Quigley were passengers in a 1970 Mercury driven by Rice.

Seriously injured were the driver of the other vehicle, Duane Phillips, 16, Marshall; and a passenger, Roberta Ekstrand, 17, Route 2, Sweet Springs, a senior at Sweet Springs High School.

Phillips was listed in serious condition Monday in the intensive care unit of Bothwell Hospital. A hospital spokesman said he sustained two broken arms, a broken pelvis, collar bone, ribs, an injured right foot and facial fractures.

Miss Ekstrand, who was transferred to the University of Missouri Medical Center early Sunday, was listed in fair condition Monday. She sustained severe head injuries and a broken left leg.

The Patrol said the accident occurred when Rice's vehicle, southbound in the northbound lane of Highway 65 near the Ohio Street exit, collided head-on with a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Phillips.

Orrell's body was taken to the Ewing Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Formal charge of burglary against youth

Michael O. Smith, 19, Route 1, was formally charged with second-degree burglary Monday in Pettis County Magistrate Court.

Smith was arrested by Sedalia police Friday in connection with the Oct. 5 theft of more than $1,000 in musical instruments from the Wilken Music Co., 3100 West Broadway. A court spokesman said Smith is free on $2,500 bond. His preliminary hearing was set for Thursday.

Also charged with Smith on the burglary complaint was Mark Wallen. Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Wallen is believed to be living near St. Joseph and has not been taken into custody yet.

In another case Monday, Daniel Dean Hamilton, 25, Otterville, was charged with possession of less than 35 grams of marijuana, a misdemeanor.

Fairfax said Hamilton was arrested Friday by the Highway Patrol after the car he was riding in was stopped for a traffic offense.

Magistrate Court Judge Frank Armstrong set Hamilton's bond at $50. He is scheduled to appear in court for a hearing on Nov. 20.

Dominick, a member of the Republican Policy Committee in the Senate and a long-time Nixon loyalist, said the country faces a genuine and grave crisis of confidence in the President's ability to lead.

Dominick called on Congress to confirm quickly the nomination of House Republican Leader Gerald Ford to be vice president.

And he said investigations begun by former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox should be "pursued with vigor, unhindered by outside interference from any source."

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Denver Bar Association, Dominick said the confidence of the American people cannot be restored until the impeachment question is disposed of.

In other police news, vandals did $240 worth of damage to windows in a house at 320 North Engineer belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kennedy, Kansas City. The Kennedys told police that the damage was done with a pumpkin.

A mini-bike, valued at $175, was stolen from Sedalia Cycle Center, 205 South Lamine, shortly before 2 a.m. Sunday, according to a police report.

A police officer on routine patrol discovered the break-in of the building. Entry was gained by knocking a hole in the front door glass of the building.

Linda Wasson, 906 East Fourth, told police that five stereo tapes and a .22 caliber automatic pistol, valued at $57.25 collectively, were taken from her car while it was parked in the Rival parking lot, 17th and Washington, between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. Thursday.

Entry into the vehicle was apparently gained by using a small tool or wire to open a wing vent and then unlocking the vehicle on the passenger side.

Devat Smith, 21, 514 North Washington, was treated for apparent knife wounds shortly before 2 a.m. Sunday.

According to police, Miss Smith had shallow lacerations on the left side of the neck and on the back of the left upper arm. The police report stated that Miss Smith did not wish a report made on the incident and declined to provide police with any further information.

'Doomsday' planes are costing more

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of converting the nation's flying military command posts to the huge 747 jets has increased $66 million in a year, despite eliminations of a computer system, congressional auditors say.

The so-called doomsday jets, which are maintained at an option for use during a nuclear war, currently use Boeing 707 jets.

When conversion was first approved to the 747s by Congress last year the cost was estimated at $482 million, but the General Accounting Office says it now is estimated at $548 million.

The GAO report, released by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., noted that the on-board computer system has been eliminated from the plans because of Air Force "inability to define what was needed."

The report contends that the system for instant communication is essential to the command post. It said the Air Force plans to add the system eventually, at an additional cost of $73 million.

GAO said the biggest cost increase was $25 million for a system to make the plane invulnerable to electromagnetic pulse from a nuclear blast, which would black out radio communications.

Other increases include increased costs of the planes and unanticipated modifications and for new facilities at Andrews Air Force Base for the bigger planes.

GOP senator makes public Nixon break

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Publicly breaking with President Nixon, Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., today advised Republicans to proclaim independence from the White House and called on the President to disclose immediately all information bearing on the Watergate investigations.

"I am reluctant to talk about impeachment, as anyone who loves his country should be," Dominick said. "But the genie is out of the bottle, and it cannot be put back in."

Dominick, a member of the Republican Policy Committee in the Senate and a long-time Nixon loyalist, said the country faces a genuine and grave crisis of confidence in the President's ability to lead.

Dominick called on Congress to confirm quickly the nomination of House Republican Leader Gerald Ford to be vice president.

And he said investigations begun by former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox should be "pursued with vigor, unhindered by outside interference from any source."

In remarks prepared for delivery to the Denver Bar Association, Dominick said the confidence of the American people cannot be restored until the impeachment question is disposed of.

Reform proposals for Common Market

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The European Community Commission announced Monday a major set of farm reform proposals for the Common Market.

The proposals included a tax on surplus EC milk production, a freeze on the price of wheat while feed grain prices continue to increase, and a subsidy for soybean production.

The proposals are aimed at reducing the EC's costly farm surpluses, notably of grains and dairy products, while maintaining the principle that high prices, rather than direct subsidies, should be at the basis of the common agricultural policy.

The EC farm commissioner, P. J. Lardinois, said that if the five-year plan is adopted by the community's Council of Ministers, it would save the EC farm fund about $1.3 billion a year by 1978. That would be 28.6 per cent of the fund's 1974 budget, which Lardinois characterized as below average.

Saxbe has denied advocating Nixon tapes be destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate William B. Saxbe today denied advocating destruction of the White House Watergate tapes if they proved to be incriminating.

The Republican senator from Ohio was quoted by the Hong Kong Standard on Aug. 23 as saying during a speech to the local chapter of the American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong:

"I think the President is right on standing on his rights not to release the tapes. I personally wish I had never heard of the tapes. If they're incriminating, they should be destroyed, and I'm sure they will; but I think he's right in saying that a president cannot be horsed around in the courts."

Saxbe, nominated last week by President Nixon to head the Justice Department, issued this statement:

"If the question is, was I advocating any illegal activity in the Hong Kong speech, the answer obviously is no. In response to a question after the Hong Kong speech, I indicated that if there was illegal activity recorded on the tapes, I questioned whether such tapes would ever be forthcoming."

Mariner 10 has heating problem

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 10 was flashing pictures to earth today despite a problem with a heating system for its cameras, said flight controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here.

"We still can't turn on the heating devices for the cameras; but even though they're running cold, they are working within the design limits," a spokesman said Sunday. The devices are used to stabilize heat differences between the cameras and the rest of the spacecraft.

Officials said more than 350 pictures of the earth and moon had been transmitted during the weekend. The pictures were bright and clear, they said.

Mariner 10 is scheduled to fly within 3,300 miles of Venus on Feb. 5, 1974, and use the gravity of Venus to direct the craft on to Mercury. The craft is expected to fly within 620 miles of Mercury on March 29, 1974.

A spokesman said scientists believed the heating problem for the cameras would lessen as the spacecraft neared the sun.

Hospital rules convention topic

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — The effect of federal and state regulations on Missouri's 160 hospitals will be examined today through Wednesday at the annual Missouri Hospital Association convention here.

About 600 persons are expected to attend. Among the speakers will be Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Dr. Roger Egeberg, special consultant to President Nixon on health affairs.

Bond will speak at a luncheon Tuesday. Robert M. White II, editor and publisher of the Mexico, Mo., Ledger, will keynote the convention Monday afternoon. Egeberg and Albert Baker, assistant director of the health policy division of the National Cost of Living Council, will speak Tuesday afternoon.

Discussing legislative matters Wednesday morning will be U.S. Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., state Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, and state Rep. Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis, Speaker of the Missouri House.

Women fire fighters prove worth

By LEE JAMES
Associated Press Writer
MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Tired of waiting on tables? Why not trade your apron for a summer of danger and excitement battling forest fires?

That's just what a group of young women did, and they say they have no regrets.

"We were always aware we were being watched," says Kate Brown, Ann Arbor, Mich., now a veteran fire fighter. "Like any minority, we had to be superhuman, practically."

The group of 25 women, aged 18-31, arrived at the 800-acre Koo Koo Fire in western Montana to the tune of catcalls, whistles and stares.

Six days later, when they left the fireline with smoke-grimed faces and weary muscles, they had proven their worth in one of the worst fires of the season.

Mostly young wanderers looking for something useful and rewarding to do for the summer, they went into the heat of battle with one day's training, expecting to be employed in the milder mop-up operations at first.

"I think people thought we were screened pretty well," said Miss Brown, 26, "but we were put right on the fire line."

Five of the girls met in a Missoula hotel coffee shop after 12 days of fire fighting and evaluated their experience.

They remembered near tragedy, practical jokes and their satisfaction at performing hard work previously done only by men.

Dolly Brouder, 27, was deluged with replies when she advertised plans to form the women's group. Two years ago, she had helped form a similar outfit that saw limited action on one fire.

The Koo Koo Fire, located in the Kootenai National Forest, was raging out of control when the women arrived, wearing baggy pants and shirts and hard hats.

A fire boss commented that nothing could have startled the fire-toughened men on the line more than the appearance of women in camp.

Shortly after they arrived, the fire jumped the line twice in the area where the women were working.

"Someone said it was the women who were losing the line," Miss Brouder said. "But others said no one could have stopped it."

The women who gathered in the coffee shop contended that equality was not their main motive for volunteering. Instead, all expressed the desire to earn higher pay and to work outside.

Elise Frank, 21, a petite blonde barely weighing 100 pounds, said she left her home near Princeton, N.J., looking for something challenging to do.

"Fighting forest fires is satisfying work," she said. "You finish the day feeling like you've done something."

All had worked as waitresses before and felt that the fire fighting job was no harder and paid much better.

"I made as much in two weeks as I did the entire summer last year," said Sarah Giant, 20, a University of Montana student whose home is Minneapolis, Minn.

U.S. Forest Service officials praised their work. But, as Miss Brown said, they were always treated "very differently."

Their presence apparently prompted an initiation from the sky.

As they ate lunch one afternoon, a bomber pilot either accidentally or deliberately dropped a massive load of fire retardant on their position.

The women argued over whether the pilot knew what he was doing. But Karen Bennett, 21, Evergreen, Colo., said she was sure it was deliberate.

"He dive-bombed us," she said.

Either way, it was a smelly welcome. Fire retardant is an odoriferous material mostly made up of fertilizer.

Danger became reality to the women, too. As they slept one night, a dead tree crashed into the middle of the camp.

One girl suffered a severe gash on the scalp. Another girl was pinned inside her sleeping bag.

"It seemed to shake up the people who hadn't been under the snag the most," said Miss Brown. "I think some of the guys expected us to get hysterical, but we didn't."

The women had one day of rest before they were sent to eastern Washington to help with the Barrett Fire in the Colville National Forest.

They worked 24 hours their first day on that fire and huddled together during a cold, smoky night on a rocky hillside.

Six days later, they returned to Missoula. It was National Women's Equality Day.

Seven women running in city council election

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Seven Republican women are opposing seven Democratic men in a city council election here Tuesday that the women say has nothing to do with women's liberation.

"We come from smoke-filled rooms," said Mrs. Lynn Hewitt, president of the Buncombe County Republican Women's Club and one of the candidates. "We have separated ourselves entirely from women's liberation."

Although none of the women has ever run for public office, several have been active in local GOP circles for years. The list includes two blacks, a beautician and a 21-year-old college student.

The all-woman slate came about after the lone Republican on the seven-member council decided not to seek re-election. The women got together, according to a local newsmen, and filed en masse for the race. Since no other GOP candidates stepped forward, no primary was held.

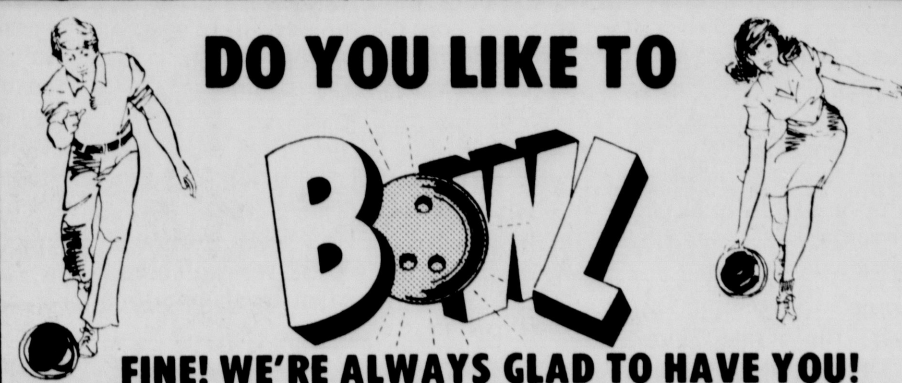

"It seemed to be the year for women to run," Mrs. Hewitt said. "It is definitely not a gimmick. We are serious candidates and fully qualified."

Mrs. Hewitt admits that the all-women slate gives the GOP a certain shock value in a city where Democratic registration holds a 3-1 edge. However, with a campaign which emphasizes door-to-door electioneering and personal contact, they hope to convince the voters that they are more representative than the opposition.

Polly's pointers

Dry bread balls clean painting

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I have three summer handbags that are almost like new on the outside but my problem is with the linings. They were fastened to the inside with tiny tacks just pushed into the inside section along the top and sides. Does someone have some other solution for fastening such linings? The tacks are constantly coming out even though I do not put them in the same places when they are replaced.

— CLARA.

Even if the pencil scribbling could be erased without dulling the varnish or rubbing the paint the indentations left by the pencil would still remain. If the owner of such a painting is very lucky the indentations may penetrate only the varnish layer. The varnish can be removed safely by a trained conservator and replaced with a new coat. Such work should NEVER be attempted by an amateur. Some solvents that remove varnish may also remove the original paint.

A professional works with many materials and first tests under a microscope. The necessity for this is understood easily after seeing paintings that have been subject to such treatments as the use of half a potato or pure soap. One unfortunate owner completely destroyed her painting by putting it through her washing machine. None of these help and all COULD ruin a painting.

Private owners should dust their paintings with a soft clean large paint brush to remove the surface dirt. Cloths could snag raised edges of paint and pull them off and any dampness can cause eventual flaking of paint. — JOYCE H.S., Conservation Center of the Institute of Fine Arts, N.Y.U.

For Women

DEAR POLLY — My art instructor told me (and I want to pass it on to H.M.A.) that ordinary dry white bread, minus the crust, rolled into a small dry ball and then rolled around on the surface of a painting will remove lint and dust. Repeat until entire painting is clean. — L.C.V.

DEAR POLLY — I am answering Mary Lee who wanted to know if any kind of an eraser could be used to remove pencil scribbling from a nice portrait. (Polly's note: Part of the following should also help H.M.A.) I am a graduate of a four-year training program at New York University to study materials and treatment to restore and preserve works of art. Four years is not enough to learn all one should know to do this with assurance.

incompetence of this government to meet basic human needs.

Caught up in the excitement, the emotions, surrounding the endless string of Watergate shocks, most Americans are scarcely aware that a vital struggle has come and gone over Mr. Nixon's budget — especially in so far as it relates to programs for job training, education, health, housing, assistance for the poor.

Does anyone have time to care that, under the President's 1974 budget, a lot more people will be forced into slums because the moratorium on low-cost housing and rent subsidies will make decent housing harder to get?

Does anyone care that, under White House priorities, there will be less hope for the millions of people who are still jobless because the emergency employment program which provided jobs for more than 200,000 persons will be terminated?

Has anyone time to care that the construction of hospitals and community health centers will end and various medical training programs will be discontinued under the 1974 budget?

Is anyone bothered that aid to disadvantaged children, vocational education programs and library services will get the axe if the President's budget ideas prevail?

Does anyone remember, or care, that millions of workers still get poverty-level wages and maids will go on working for a nationwide average of $1 an hour, because Mr. Nixon vetoed the new minimum wage bill?

A hundred religious, educational, medical, housing and other organizations cared enough last March to band together in a "Coalition for Human Needs and Budget Priorities." Their chairman, Mayor Henry M. Maier of Milwaukee, said "The President's budget is an irresponsible document... it suffers not only from a lack of compassion but a lack of comprehension." The goal was to force

Mr. Nixon to accept "a peacetime budget."

The coalition perceived its struggle as one of "human needs vs. military spending," so coalition members knew they had lost the struggle when Congress recently gave Mr. Nixon just about everything he wanted in the way of military appropriations.

The coalition had rallied around the 1974 Labor-HEW appropriations bill, which is now in House-Senate conference. President Nixon almost certainly will veto what the two houses agree on because the Congress wants to spend more for education, health and other human programs than Mr. Nixon requested.

Barbara Williams, executive director of the coalition, says dismay and despair now grip some of her colleagues because they see human needs forced to the back-burner by Watergate and related shocks and scandals.

She says the coalition has decided it is "futile to appeal to a Congress that is afraid of the President and runs away from human needs. We now know that we must change the face of a Congress which lacks not only leadership, but a sense of purpose and direction. So we are now organizing in key congressional districts. Mr. Nixon's tragic veto will continue unless we make Congress veto-proof."

The agonizing question is whether, given the current mood and condition of the country, the coalition can even get enough people to care about Congress, or its leadership, for direction or sense of purpose.

For the larger tragedy may be that the people have for so long been bereft of compassionate leadership that THEY lack a sense of direction and purpose when it comes to human needs.

Mideast: no easy answers

By CROSBY S. NOYES

WASHINGTON — The curious optimism that exists in this town about the prospects of achieving a compromise settlement of the Arab-Israeli conflict is based on a number of highly doubtful premises.

There are, in fact, not very many experts on the present situation in the Middle East who would agree with President Nixon's judgment that "the outlook for a permanent peace is the best that it has been in 20 years." Nor are they as confident as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger apparently is that the United States will succeed in an "effort to bring about a solution that is considered just by all parties."

The hope of a settlement has not been notably increased by the visit here last week of Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir or Kissinger's projected calls on the Arab capitals. Mrs. Meir's trip was prompted primarily by Israeli apprehensions about the solidity of American support.

Three major reasons are cited to justify the official optimism.

The first is that, in contrast to the wars of 1956 and 1967, both sides were badly hurt in the latest round of fighting and neither side achieved a decisive military victory.

The second is that the United States and the Soviet Union have worked together to establish a cease-fire and to set up a United Nations supervisory and peace-keeping force. The super-powers have also apparently agreed to use their good offices — and considerable influence — to get peace negotiations started.

And finally, for the first time, the Egyptians — and perhaps also the Syrians — may be willing to sit down and negotiate directly with Israelis — something they have resolutely refused to do in the past. The Israelis have always insisted that direct negotiations were essential to reaching a settlement of the conflict.

No doubt each of these factors represents a change, possibly for the better, in the situation that existed before Oct. 6. But it is at least premature to assume that they necessarily improve the chances of a successful peace negotiation.

Indeed, there are some who believe that the chances for peace are more remote than ever. The Arabs accepted the cease-fire and the call for talks because they were facing military defeat and because they apparently hope that the great powers are prepared to bring pressure on Israel to give in to their demands.

In Israel, the doves are totally silent. The government is under pressure from the super-hawks for accepting the cease-fire on the brink of a major military victory and for failing to prepare adequately for the Arab attacks. There has not been the concessions than before. The consensus, in fact, appears to be that the latest round of fighting proved the wisdom of holding large chunks of Arab territory after the Six-day war.

Nor can one bank too heavily on concerted action by the super-powers in forcing concessions on their respective clients. The agreement reached by Kissinger in Moscow was confined strictly to the cease-fire formula and plans for an ensuing negotiation. Subsequent events, including the Russian threat to intervene militarily in the Middle East, proved how tenuous even that limited agreement was.

There has been no hint of anything even approaching a concerted Russian-American formula for the shape of a peace settlement and indeed specific denials that such a thing exists. Kissinger has spoken of the need for concessions on both sides and the possibility of "a certain parallelism" with the Soviet Union that could develop in trying to find compromise solutions. But there is also clear recognition of the fact that the interests of the super-powers in the Middle East remain basically antagonistic.

It is utterly naive to expect that all the enormous difficulties standing in the way of a permanent settlement will fade away once the Israelis and Arabs agree to sit down together at the negotiating table. Certainly they will not fade away if the pressure for concessions is directed exclusively at Israel. What one can realistically anticipate is a rough and bitter bargaining session in which both sides press their claims with tenacity and in which the ties between Israel and the United States are likely to be strained as never before.

James J. Kilpatrick is on vacation.

Ambulance service: which way is best?

Hospital-based ambulance service is growing in Missouri, and has been firmly endorsed by the State Division of Health as the best means of providing emergency medical care.

Dr. Herbert R. Domke, division director, reports that 25 hospitals in the state already are operating community ambulances, and that 10 more are awaiting delivery of emergency vehicles. All of this has occurred since 1968.

Two main reasons are cited by Dr. Domke for the expansion of hospital-based ambulance services: (1) hospital personnel are better-equipped to render professional emergency medical care at the scene of an accident, enroute to the hospital and in the hospital itself, and (2) costs can be reduced since regular hospital personnel can be utilized on emergency ambulance calls in addition to performing their other duties.

"Hospitals are to be congratulated for their efforts in working with local interested medical and community groups in providing this important health service," said Dr. Domke. "Communities must assume responsibility for their local emergency medical services, and these hospitals are helping their communities to fulfill this responsibility."

The community might wonder, in light of the above, why local discussions aimed at setting up a community ambulance service based at Bothwell Hospital apparently have been sidetracked.

The City Council last met with hospital officials in June, at which time some rather high cost estimates were provided by the hospital which tended to dampen the council's enthusiasm for having Bothwell Hospital take over ambulance service.

These figures should be reviewed. If many other community hospitals in the state are finding it feasible to set up ambulance services, why should Bothwell Hospital be an exception? Even if an operating subsidy is required, the city and county should be able to work out an equitable system of handling this without placing an undue burden on either.

By next July 1 a tough new state ambulance licensing law will go into effect, which is another consideration bearing on a hospital-based service. The guiding principle should be: how can local residents be provided the best possible emergency ambulance care by today's, and tomorrow's, standards? The answer, in our opinion, lies with Bothwell Hospital.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's scathing hostility toward the press infected almost the entire White House staff long before his latest press conference.

A series of secret memos, dating back to the first year of the Nixon Administration, show how the staff schemed to intimidate reporters and their employers into giving favorable coverage in the media.

The White House tactics included plans to use the Federal Communications Commission against the networks, to stimulate letters to newspapers and to block reporters from interviewing Nixon aides when it appeared the stories might be unfavorable.

The first disclosure of the campaign to intimidate Nixon's news critics was made last week by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who made public a memo from Jeb Stuart Magruder to former White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Magruder recommended using the Justice Department, Internal Revenue Service and Federal Communications Commission to harass offending news organizations.

Other documents, which haven't yet surfaced, show the White House was going after the media with a vengeance. In one memorandum, Haldeman's briefcase carrier, Lawrence Higby, declared: "What we are trying to do here is tear down the institution."

He referred to a July 1970 statement which Life magazine attributed to newscaster Chet Huntley, then about to retire from NBC. Huntley was quoted as saying of Nixon: "The shallowness of the man overwhelms me; the fact that he is President frightens me."

Wrote Higby to Magruder: "The point behind this whole thing is that we don't care about Huntley — he is going to leave anyway. What we are trying to do here is tear down the institution. Huntley will go out in a blaze of glory, and we will shout at his pop his bubble."

Higby suggested stimulating petitions from the public and pressure from station owners demanding Huntley's immediate removal. "Let's put a full plan on this and get the thing moving," urged the young Haldeman aide.

But by the next day, the White House learned that Huntley planned to apologize to Nixon and to deny the validity of the

Merry-go-round

Nixon media mania was evident early quotation in Life magazine. Still, the White House staff kept churning.

Magruder, in a memo to Haldeman, suggested: "Since the newscaster enjoys a very favorable public image and will apologize for his remarks, claiming to be misquoted, we should not attempt to discredit him personally.... The focus of our effort should be to raise the larger question of objectivity and ethics in the media as an institution. To do this, we will have to turn objectivity into an issue and the subject of public debate."

The Magruder plan called for the White House staff to "plant" stories raising "the question of objectivity and ethics in the news business."

He also sought to recruit a journalism dean, congressmen, private groups and Vice President Spiro Agnew to flay the press. FCC Chairman Dean Burch would also be called upon to "express concern about press objectivity."

Magruder also envisioned "a blue-ribbon media watchdog" committee, which "John Cosgrove, a former president of the National Press Club," could set up. The presidential assistant wanted even to arrange for "a senator or congressman (to) write a public letter to the FCC suggesting the 'licensing' of individual newsmen."

While demanding fairness for themselves, however, the White House schemed to keep the Democrats from being treated fairly. Charles Colson wrote to Haldeman on Aug. 26, 1970:

"The other side is really being hurt as they begin to understand the FCC decisions. The Democratic National Committee is using every procedural move (and CBS is cooperating) to stay the decisions.... I think it is time for us to generate again a PR campaign against the Democrats and CBS."

A month later, Colson submitted a brutal report on his meetings with officials of the three networks:

"The networks are terribly nervous over the uncertain state of the law, i.e., the recent FCC decisions and the pressures to grant Congress access to TV. They are also apprehensive about us. Although they tried to displease this, it was obvious. The harder I pressed them (CBS and NBC) the more accommodating, cordial and almost apologetic they became. (Then CBS President Frank) Stanton for all his bluster is the most insecure of all..."

"There was unanimous agreement that the President's right of access to TV should in no way be restrained," Colson wrote. "Both CBS and ABC agreed with me that on most occasions the President speaks as President and that there is no obligation for presenting a contrasting point of view under the Fairness Doctrine..."

He reported that NBC President Julian Goodman said the "fairness test must be applied to every presidential speech" but agreed in noncontroversial speeches "there is no duty to balance." All agree no one has a "right" to reply. "This was the most important understanding we came to. What is important is that they know how strongly we feel about this."

Colson wrote that CBS Chairman William Paley "went out of his way to say how much he supports the President, and how popular the President is... The only ornament on Goodman's desk was the Nixon inaugural medal. (ABC Vice President James) Hagerty said... 'ABC is with us'..."

"I am realistic enough to realize that we probably won't see any obvious improvement in the news coverage," Colson said, "but I think we can dampen their ardor for putting on 'loyal opposition' type programs."

Haldeman had his own ideas on how to intimidate the press. In a memo to Magruder on Feb. 4, 1970, he called for the "mobilization of the Silent Majority, which we touched on briefly in the meeting today. We just haven't really mobilized them, and we have got to move now in every effective way we can to get them working to pound on the magazines and networks in counteraction to the obvious shift of the establishment to an attack on Vietnam again."

"Concentrate this in the few places that count, which would be New York Times, Newsweek and Life, the New York Times and the Washington Post. Don't waste your fire on other things."

It is clear from the secret documents that the White House has a curious definition of "unfairness." Anything unfavorable, in the White House view, is unfair.

FOOD & FIBER NEWS

University of Missouri Extension Centers
Henry - Johnson - Lafayette - Pettis

Charcoal rot appeared to be a bigger problem in some soybean fields this year. It caused some severe losses in isolated fields. Apparently the hot, dry spell in late August stimulated growth of the fungus which causes charcoal rot. Black streaks show up when the root and base of the stems of infected plants are split open. The tiny black bodies can be seen when the bark is peeled from roots and stems. They resemble a sprinkling of finely powdered charcoal. This is the cause of most bean pod dropage.

Leases
Times have changed. Market prices of crops are up and production costs are climbing. Tenants and landowners are questioning crop-share arrangements that were developed on the basis of $1.15 corn, $2.50 soybeans, and what at $1.50 per bushel.

With satisfactory leases, crop production and production costs are shared according to the value of resources each individual contributed to production. The market price of crops should not influence the division. We have worksheets at the Extension office.

Conservation Expenditure
If you are faced with an extra high income this year and don't want to get caught paying extra income tax, consider doing some of the conservation work you have been putting off.

Conservation expenses don't have the disadvantage of increasing next year's income like putting off some sales does. Also you aren't decreasing next year's expenses like you would if you bought supplies at the last of the year. Conservation expenses are limited to 25 per cent of gross farm income.

Killing Johnsongrass
With so much Johnsongrass showing up in cultivated fields and rapidly spreading here is something that can be done to help in the eradication of it. Milton Mathew, Johnsongrass coordinator, suggests fall plowing, preferable just ahead of severe cold weather to expose the roots and rhizomes to the elements. Shallow plowing is most desirable and if you have a spring tooth harrow or similar implement, run it over the field after plowing to pull the roots and rhizomes to the surface. This allows the roots and rhizomes to be exposed to the maximum freezing of the winter. Success of this method of course depends upon the severity of the winter and the vigor of the roots. Follow up treatments next spring and summer will depend upon the crop to be grown and the amount of kill received during the winter to the Johnsongrass.

If you have any scattered spots of Johnsongrass infestation, then treatment of these spots with a soil sterilant is probably the most effective.

Fields with heavy infestation can be greatly reduced by rotating them to wheat for several years and mowing the Johnsongrass after wheat. Late summer plowing for wheat seeding interrupts the Johnsongrass and competition of the wheat in the spring and summer crowds much of it out.

Seedlings controls in corn can be effected by the use of Eptam or Sutan and in soybeans with Treflan.

Cow depreciation
While cow depreciation has been negative during recent years of increasing prices, it most definitely will swing strongly the other way if cattle prices suffer a cyclical decline. Where a cow perhaps increased in value by $30 to $40 per year the last few years, she could well decrease in value that much or more in the near future. Thus, a $400 cow purchased in 1973 could well become a $200 cull cow (or less) after 3 to 5 years of use. This implies a $40 to $65 annual cow depreciation to be added to all other costs. Be sure your purchased cows are on your IRS depreciation list. They can qualify for investment credit.

Grazing sorghum
Many farmers are able to obtain 50 or more cow days per acre from grazing grain sorghum stalks after frost according to David Lindell, Area Agronomy Specialist. In Pettis County there was approximately 13,300 acres of grain sorghum produced. This acreage will supply a large amount of forage, if managed properly. Forage sorghums, sorghum-sudangrass hybrids, and sudangrass may be grazed following a frost after the vegetation has dried.

Animals should not be allowed to graze on freshly frosted sorghums. Frost breaks the plant cells and causes a rapid release of prussic acid. As the prussic acid is lost from plant tissues, the dried forage is safe for feeding.

Ensiled forages with a high level of prussic acid are considered safe because of the aeration of the forage in normal feeding operations. When the entire plant is harvested, there is a risk of a high concentration of prussic acid because the older plant parts are mixed with the younger ones. Older plant parts have a much lower level of prussic acid than the younger plant parts.

Animals can safely consume a low level of prussic acid because they can excrete some cyanide in the urine. When high concentrations of prussic acid are eaten during a short time period, animals cannot excrete enough cyanide and they become poisoned.

Such problems are not as severe with alfalfa, clovers, perennial pasture and grasses. They make good pasture after frost. Some digestive disturbances may occur among grazing animals eating freshly frosted legumes.

Lindell added that in grazing grasses this fall, limit grazing to leave 3 or 4 inches of grass covering to prevent thinning of stand.

D.H.I.
During the month of August Lena and Chancy Housworth supervised the testing of 821 cows in 15 herds. The five highest herds for the month were Richard Lenz, Roland Oelrichs, Paul and Jessie Birdsong, Everett Billings and Robert Longan.

The average number of cows per herd ranged from 34 to 97. The milk production per cow ranged from 991 to 1140 pounds.

There were 19 cows in the Association that produced over 550 pounds of butterfat during their last 305-days of lactation. The Longan Dairy with five, Cloyd Merk one, French Dairy two, Kenneth and Gale Lenz three, Roland Oelrichs two, and each of the following had one: Paul and Jessie Birdsong, Robert Wilsheusen and Eldon Lenz. Clyde Rehmer had three cows in this group. The top cow in this group was in the Rehmer Dairy. This cow was a four-year old and produced 881 pounds of butterfat and 21,180 pounds of milk.

The highest 11 producing cows were three from the Richard Lenz Dairy, one from the Longan Dairy, two from Merk Dairy, two from Rehmer Dairy, two from McCollister Dairy and one from Paul and Jessie Birdsong Dairy. The highest producer of these 11 individual cows was a four-year old from the Richard Lenz Dairy producing for the month 108 pounds of butterfat and 2760 pounds of milk.

WITBANK, South Africa (AP) — Mrs. J. S. Yermaak jumped out of her car to argue with the driver of a truck that had collided with her. The other driver happened to be her husband.

Damage to the car was estimated at $447, and to the truck, $149.

"We'll settle out of court," she said.

O. J. Simpson contained

Stage set for key Saints, Rams contest

By FRANK BROWN
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the schedule makers dreamed up the New Orleans at Los Angeles game for next Sunday, they had no idea it could create the biggest game in the Saints' 6½-year history in the National Football League.

A tough New Orleans defense held Buffalo running phenom O.J. Simpson to 79 yards Sunday, and five field goals by Atlanta Falcon rookie Nick Mike-Mayer dumped the Rams — setting up an unusually important confrontation between a perennial playoff contender and a perennial also-ran.

"We thought we could run on the Saints' front four, but we didn't," said Simpson, who despite running under his average of 146 yards per game raised his season's total to 1,104.

"Hustle. That's what you'd call that defense," he said. "They just kept us away from the football."

The result — a 13-0 shutout for the Saints' fourth victory in the last five weeks. The triumph raised their record to 4-4, put New Orleans just one game behind the Atlanta Falcons, and brought them to within two games of the Rams, the National Football Conference Western Division leaders.

The Falcons, meanwhile, administered a 15-13 licking to the Rams on Mike-Mayer's field goals.

The Falcons and Mike-Mayer helped set up the Los Angeles-New Orleans showdown by scoring their fourth consecutive victory and handing the Rams their second loss in a row.

Elsewhere in the NFL Sunday, the Minnesota Vikings remained undefeated with a 26-3 victory over the Cleveland Browns; the Detroit Lions topped the San Francisco 49ers 30-20; the Chicago Bears clipped the Green Bay Packers 31-17; the Houston Oilers outscored the Baltimore Colts 31-27; the Kansas City Chiefs blanked the San Diego Chargers 19-0; the Miami Dolphins upended the New York Jets 24-14; the Dallas Cowboys pounded the Cincinnati Bengals 38-10; the Denver Broncos and St. Louis Cardinals tied 17-17; the Philadelphia Eagles edged the New England Patriots 24-23, and the Oakland Raiders bombed the New York Giants 42-0.

The Washington Redskins, leading NFC East, visit the Pittsburgh Steelers, frontrunners in AFC Central tonight in a nationally televised contest.

Washington vs. Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers will be bidding for their 13th consecutive regular season victory at home when they meet the Washington Redskins tonight in a National Football League game.

"We look upon this as a championship game and I'm sure the Steelers do too," said a Redskin running back, Larry Brown, a Pittsburgh native.

The Steelers, minus two injured backfield members, take a 6-1 record into the nationally televised game. They lead Cleveland by 1½ games in the American Football Conference Central Division.

Washington, 5-2 after an upset loss last week in New Orleans, holds a one-game edge over Dallas in the National Conference Eastern Division.

tinued its comeback and the Vikings came within one game of wrapping up the NFC Central Division title with their eighth victory in eight games this season — a 26-3 triumph over the Cleveland Browns. Lions 30, 49ers 20 Bill Munson started his first game in three years, fired a pair of first-quarter touchdown passes to Larry Walton, and led the Detroit Lions past the interception-prone San Francisco 49ers 30-20.

Bears 31, Packers 17 Chicago quarterback Bobby Douglass scored four touchdowns, passed for 118 yards and ran for 100 more to help the Bears deal the Green Bay Packers their third consecutive loss, 31-17.

Oilers 31, Colts 27 Quarterback Lynn Dickey had an easy time with the Baltimore defense, completing 22 of 32 passes for 340 yards behind perfect protection, powering the Houston Oilers to a 31-27 decision over the Colts for their first road triumph since Dec. 12, 1971.

Dolphins 24, Jets 14 Bob Griese connected with Paul Warfield on a 37-yard touchdown play in the third quarter, breaking a 14-14 tie and leading the Miami Dolphins past the New York Jets 24-14.

Cowboys 38, Bengals 10 Dallas linebacker Lee Roy Jordan intercepted passes on three consecutive Cincinnati possessions, lifting the Cowboys to a 38-10 verdict over the Bengals.

Eagles 24, Patriots 23 A last-minute field goal carried the Eagles to victory, with Tom Dempsey succeeding from 12 yards out to down New England 24-23.

Raiders 42, Giants 0 The Raiders overpowered the staggering Giants from the start. They amassed 439 yards to just 185 for New York and scored a devastating 42-0 shutout over a Giants team that has now lost six in a row.

Chargers held off board

Livingston, Hayes set pace for Kansas City

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers, reeling through a season-long nightmare, can take some lessons from the Kansas City Chiefs in coming back from adversity.

Facing virtual elimination from the playoff race and playing without first-string quarterback Len Dawson, the Chiefs snapped a two-game losing streak Sunday and smothered the Chargers 19-0.

Mike Livingston, named to replace the injured Dawson shortly before the game, directed a balanced attack that looked worlds apart from the punchless club that lost 23-14 to Buffalo last Monday night.

"I didn't feel any pressure at all," insisted Livingston. "The way we've been playing, we didn't have anything to lose."

The victory kept the Chiefs, 4-3-1, only a game back of Oakland in the American Conference West.

Livingston, who said he "didn't throw one pass that felt good," completed 10 of 19 for 169 yards, including a clinching 39-yard touchdown to Morris Stroud in the fourth period.

Veteran fullback Wendell Hayes charged through huge holes up the middle for 90 yards in 13 carries—more than twice the Chiefs' rushing total last week. And the old, tough Kansas City defense, led by linebackers Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch, sacked San Diego's rookie quarterback Dan Fouts.

Fouts completed only 11 of 29 passes for 128 yards with three interceptions and was relieved in the third quarter by John Unitas, making his first appearance in five weeks. The veteran led the Chargers to two first downs but bruised a shoulder on a tackle and had to leave the game.

As the Chargers dropped to 1-6-1 with their third shutout loss, some of the home crowd took out its frustration on Coach Harland Svare. They cheered fans who paraded through the stadium with anti-Svare banners and pelted the coach with wads of paper as he walked off the field.

"I'm a football person and football persons just have to stay in there until it's over," Svare said afterwards. "It's tough to watch anybody endure that," said Kansas City Coach Hank Stram. "But we're in the winning business and that's all the fans judge you by."

Fancy footwork doesn't pay off

Premier running back O.J. Simpson (32) tries some fancy stepping — New Orleans style — but it didn't pay off Sunday as the Saints held him to less than 80 yards in 20 carries. On this play in the second quarter, Simpson made three yards, after stepping out of the reach of Jim Merlo (left). He was caught by Elex Price and Wayne Coleman. The Bills suffered a 13-0 shutout at the hands of New Orleans.

Barry provides cushion

Kings fall to Golden State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Barry scored with 20 seconds remaining Sunday night from the corner and pulled the Golden State Warriors to a 92-91 victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Golden State fought off a wild Kings' finish in the last period in posting the win.

The Warriors moved in front late in the second period, led by as many as 13 points in the third quarter and went into the last stanza in the lead, 76-67. Jimmy Walker, Sam Lacey and Ron Behagen each pumped in six points in the last quarter for the Kings. Walker hit a 15-footer with 49 seconds showing to cut the Warriors margin to one.

Barry's bucket gave the Warriors a three-point lead, but Lacey scored with 12 seconds to go and the Kings battled futilely to get the ball back for a last shot, but couldn't come up with it.

Barry was the leading scorer with 26. Rookie Behagen paced the Kings with 21. In other NBA action Sunday night, the Chicago Bulls beat Buffalo, 101-95, in overtime; Phoenix fell to the Capital Bullets, 102-99; New York downed the Seattle SuperSonics, 111-106; Houston lost to the Los Angeles Lakers, 106-93.

In the only American Basketball Association game Sunday, Indiana edged the Virginia Squires, 128-122.

Quarterback Rich Haynie of Florissant, Mo., is in his third season with the Air Force eleven.

Earle Neale services scheduled for Tuesday

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled Tuesday for former football coaching great Earle "Greasy" Neale, who died Friday in Lake Worth Fla., at the age of 89.

Neale, the only man in history to play in a World Series, coached a Rose Bowl football team and coach a championship professional football team, began his athletic career in 1909.

He played major league baseball with the Cincinnati Reds, coached professional football with the Philadelphia Eagles. He also coached college football at West Virginia Wesleyan, Washington & Jefferson, Marietta, Muskingum, Virginia, West Virginia and Yale.

Services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Vaughn Funeral Home with burial to follow in the IOOF cemetery here.

Ishii makes move

PARIS — Illie Natase wore down Stan Smith in the final two sets, winning the men's singles title 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-0, 6-2 at the French Indoor Tennis Championships. Natase also combined with Juan Gisbert of Spain for the doubles title, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5.

Mentors meet with press

Big 8 coaches lean slightly to Oklahoma

KANSAS CITY (AP) — This may be the year of the Oklahoma Sooners in Big Eight Conference basketball.

The league's coaches seemed to lean in the direction of the Sooners—if they leaned in any direction—Sunday when they held their annual meeting and preseason news conference.

Nebraska Coach Joe Cipriano, for one, said, "You have to take an awful strong look at Oklahoma."

Joe Ramsey, the Sooners' new coach, admitted he has two pretty fair teams, a big five and a quick five. Alvan Adams, the conference scoring leader who was sensational as a freshman a year ago, fits into both units.

"Maturity is one of our question marks," said Ramsey, one of two new conference coaches. "We have 10 sophomores. People look to us to be involved in the race because of Adams. People are going to feel if they stop Adams, they can stop Oklahoma."

Coach Jack Hartman of Kansas State, the defending champion, said one of his "biggest concerns is lack of muscle. We'll be a good running team but there's the question of how well we'll shoot."

The Wildcats lost some of their stars but still have a fine nucleus in Lon Kruger, Larry Williams and Danny Beard.

Kansas has all of its starters back. Rick Suttle, Nino Samuel, Tom Kivisto, Danny Knight and Dale Greenlee.

"At times last year," said Kansas Coach Ted Owens, "we were a good basketball team. But we were inconsistent mainly I think because of immaturity and lack of veteran leadership. I think we have improved in these areas considerably."

"We certainly should have an improved team inasmuch as we did not lose a starter and have added depth in our good freshman group and junior college transfers."

Owens said Samuels had lost 20 pounds and Knight 25 pounds from their weights of a year ago.

Coach Sox Walseth of Colorado said the Buffs "should have excellent depth. We have a lot of kids with very similar abilities but we probably won't be very big."

The Buffs have four returning starters. Lee Haven, Scotty

Wedman, Pat Kelly and Bill Cole. Also, there's Dave Logan, a big star as a freshman last season before he was ruled scholastically ineligible.

Missouri, second behind K-State in last season's league race, will be "very young, very inexperienced," said Coach Norm Stewart. "I think we have some potential. Al Eberhard and Gary Link are the only players back who have played previously."

Ron Selbo, Danny Van Rhee and Rocky Copley were listed by Stewart as freshmen with a good chance of getting into varsity action.

Guy Strong, the new coach at Oklahoma State, hinted the Cowboys will have a good first team but "it's when we get into depth that we'll be hurting."

The Cowboys have four top players back. Andy Hilson, the conference rebound leader; Tom Duckett, Kevin Fitzgerald and K.C. Kincaide in addition to two outstanding freshmen, Ronnie Daniels and Gerry Carroll.

Wes Harris, Eric Heft and Larry Louts return to Iowa State's team but may find strong opposition for starting assignments from sophomore Herclie Ivy and Robert Wilson, a transfer from Southwestern Louisiana, and freshmen Steve Burgason and Jim Thorup.

Iowa State Coach Maury John said, "This is the best year we've had recruiting big people during my 15 years in Iowa. We'll certainly miss our senior players but we have a lot of experience returning."

Cipriano singled out two freshmen, Ron Taylor and Mark Enright, and junior college transfer Fred Coker as players who had a chance of becoming starters for Nebraska.

"The current freshman crop probably is the best since I've been at Nebraska," said Cipriano, whose four returning starters are Jerry Fort, Brendy Lee, Ricky Marsh and Steve Erwin.

Cipriano described Missouri as "a sleeper" in the conference race.

Cipriano was asked if he thought the conference would produce two teams as good as Kansas State and Missouri last season. He answered with one word: "No."

Ben Crenshaw makes big debut

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, a gallery-gatherer in the mold of Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino, wasted no time in fulfilling the bright promise of his gaudy amateur record, but the young Texan had no grandiose predictions of future pro success.

"I don't like to talk about things like that," the 21-year-old Crenshaw said in response to a question after his wire-to-wire run to victory in the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open Golf Tournament.

It talked loud and clear — with a phenomenal putter the biggest voice — in the cool, cloudy weather of the last round as Crenshaw shrugged off a watery bogey on the ninth hole, twice pulled out of ties with George Archer and Orville Moody and won with a gritty, four-under-par 67.

He used only 25 putts on the undulating, two-level greens as his 270 total — a distant 14-under-par on the 6,990-yard Woodlake Golf Club course — was good for a two-stroke victory and stamped him as perhaps the brightest young star in the game.

The husky, handsome young man, who wears his blond hair at mod length, can draw the crowds through the gate.

A mob of more than 20,000 showed up for the final round. Almost all of them followed Crenshaw, including a dozen Trinity University coeds wearing the burnt orange colors of Crenshaw's Texas alma mater.

For the week, the 60,000 total attendance was the greatest in the 44-year history of this old tournament.

And they all came to see Crenshaw. Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Trevino, Tom Weiskopf — all the game's recognized gate attractions — were among the missing.

Still, there was a heavy cadre of tour-tested veterans ready to try the young man who won three national collegiate titles at Texas.

None could handle him. "I tried as hard as I could, but I couldn't crack this little nut," said Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion who finished second for the third time this season. He had a final 67 and 272. Archer, a former Masters champion who was just one stroke back when the final round began, had a 69-273.

Rod Funseth was alone with 69-276 while Dave Eichelberger and Jack Ewing were bracketed at 277.

The victory was worth $25,000 to Crenshaw. It came in only his fourth tournament as a professional and made him the youngest winner on the pro tour since Gene Sarazen won the 1922 U.S. Open as a 20-year-old.

Gibson rates Sooners the favorite

Mizzou, OU head for showdown

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Third-ranked Oklahoma will beat 12th-ranked Missouri in their Big Eight Conference football showdown Saturday.

That's the opinion of Coach Vince Gibson of Kansas State, who has a pretty fair background for basing his appraisal.

Only last Saturday, Kansas State, after giving Missouri a scare, was thoroughly thrashed by the Tigers 31-7. A week earlier, the Wildcats, without frightening Oklahoma in the least, were soundly trampled by the Sooners 56-14.

"Oklahoma is a better football team than Missouri," Gibson said, "but Missouri will play them close."

The Sooner-Tiger struggle, to be played at Columbia, Mo., will headline another big Saturday in Big Eight football. Nebraska, 13th ranked, is at home against Iowa State, Colorado, ranked No. 17, invades Kansas, and Kansas State travels to Oklahoma State.

Oklahoma tightened its grip on first place in the league race last weekend by overcoming Iowa State 34-17, giving the Sooners a 3-0 conference record and a 6-0-1 mark over-all. Missouri, 3-1 and 7-1, kept hot on the Sooners' heels with its come-from-behind decision over the Wildcats.

Nebraska, 2-1-1 and 6-1-1, remained hopeful by routing Colorado 28-16. Kansas, 2-1-1 and 5-2-1, likewise, clung to its hopes by surviving a late field goal attempt by Oklahoma State and tying the Cowboys 10-10.

Kansas State, 1-3 and 4-4, grabbed a 7-0 lead over Missouri in the second quarter and completely outclassed the Tigers until Ray Bybee got off a 65-yard run to set up the tying tally. After the Bengals got even on John Cherry's five-yard pass to John Kelsey, the complexion changed completely in favor of the Tigers.

"They came up with the big play when they had to have it, every critical time," said Gibson.

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio said Bybee's run "was the thing that broke the game for us. That one brought us back."

The Sooners trailed Iowa State, 0-4 and 2-5, by 17-7 but Steve Davis threw two touchdown passes and Joe Washington tallied twice, once on a 30-yard run. Washington ran for 136 yards.

Nebraska, scoring 14 points in each of the first two quarters, picked up two touchdowns on Dave Humm's passes and the others on runs of one and nine yards by Tony Davis. Humm's pitches were for 10 yards to Brent Longwell and 21 yards to Frosty Anderson.

450 are entered in distance run

BOSTON (AP) — More than 450 distance runners from 38 colleges were down to start today in the 61st annual New England Intercollegiate cross country championships at Franklin Park.

Tufts' Dan Moynihan, the defending individual champion, had some strong challengers, including Mike O'Shea of Providence, Mike Buckley of Northeastern and John Thomas of Massachusetts.

Heldman loses

EDINBURGH, Scotland — Briton Virginia Wade beat Julie Heldman of the United States 6-4, 3-6, 6-1 for the title in an international tennis tournament.

Denver's chances fade on 17-17 tie with Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Denver Broncos deadlocked the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday in the National Football League, and for 32-year-old Jim Turner it tasted like ashes.

"We should have won," Turner maintained softly, his countenance darkening the Broncos' dressing room. "I don't have anyone to blame but myself."

Turner, a 10-season NFL vet, minutes before had warded off a Denver defeat with a 12-yard closing field goal.

But his last-second kick, capping a 41-yard drive, was preceded by three which earlier fell short and helped stymie the Broncos in the 17-17 standoff.

"It was just one of those days," sighed Turner, who missed from the Cardinals' 45 and 44 in the first half and from the 42 in the third quarter.

"There are no excuses," he insisted, however "I consider this game a loss for us. And we never should have lost today."

Denver's tie dimmed the Broncos' chances of catching the Oakland Raiders in the NFL's American Conference West with a 3-3-2 record, while St. Louis stands 3-4-1 in the National Conference East.

But as the Broncos were missing opportunities, so were the Cardinals, who led 17-14 after Donny Anderson crashed a yard to score.

Elusive Terry Metcalf scooted eight yards on first down with four minutes left and two plays later quarterback Jim Hart faded to pass.

Hart's aerial was headed for the hands of teammate Ahmad Rashad, but the Broncos' Bill Thompson intercepted at the Cards' 46.

Charley Johnson, the ex-Cardinal, then entered and shot passes to Riley Odums advancing the ball to the St. Louis 5. Although 1:48 remained, the Broncos in three tries were unable to squeeze Floyd Little into the end zone ahead of the Turner kick.

Also unrelayed by the stalemate was Hart, who passed five yards to Don Shy for St.

Louis' first touchdown but was twice intercepted in an 18-for-31 day.

"The defense played super," reflected the 29-year-old Hart, a former Johnson understudy. "We just couldn't generate an offense. I just didn't throw well."

Hart's passes produced fewer yards than those of Johnson, who completed 15 of 24 and teamed up with the 6-foot-4 Odums for a 47-yard touchdown in the second quarter.

"Charley Johnson's an incredible quarterback," Denver Coach John Ralston said admiringly. "I'm glad St. Louis trained him so well."

Laver wins singles

HONG KONG — Rod Laver of Australia captured the singles title, besting Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico 6-2, 3-6, 6-2, and teamed with Colin Dibley to take the doubles championship in a $25,000 international tennis tournament.

Trevino tough in final round

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Colorful Lee Trevino played his second straight round without a bogey, shooting a 5-under-par 68 Sunday, and scored at four-stroke victory in a $74,500 international golf tournament.

The irrepressible Trevino, who had shared the third-round lead with fellow American Jim Colbert, finished with a 72-hole total of 277, 15-under-par over the rain-inundated, 6,850-yard, par-73 Lakes Golf course.

The 32-year-old Colbert staggered in with an 80 and wound up in a tie for seventh at 289.

Stewart Ginn of Australia, one stroke back starting the final round, recorded a 71 and was second at 281. Australians also took the next two places, with Graham Marsh third at 285, followed by Bill Dunk at 287.

Trevino received $14,900 plus a new car. "I predicted that 15-under-par would win — and I'm pleased I was the one to do it," he said.

Colbert, who had fired consecutive 69s and a 71 before dropping out of contention in the final round, said, "I started with the feeling it was all a nightmare. It's been a long time since I played like a rookie."

Scores of other Americans included Gay Brewer at 292, Jerry Breaux at 293 and Cesar Sandoz and 61-year-old Sam Snead, each at 294.

Something 'new' for the Tigers

Green Ridge off to fast start

By WARREN RIPLEY Staff Sports Writer
GREEN RIDGE — The Green Ridge Tigers christened their new auditorium with a victory over Northwest here Saturday night, 65-54, behind the shooting of senior guard Kent Scotten and the rebounding of Mike Proffitt and John Dove.

This was the first game ever played in the new gymnasium, which was completed last spring. Along with the facility, the Tigers also have new uniforms with bell-bottomed warm-up pants. Everything is up-to-date in Green Ridge. Add to that the fact that the Tigers are off to a 2-0 start with a win Friday night over Deepwater and the Green Ridge followers have something to really smile about after years of mediocrity.

The Tigers broke from the gate fast gaining a 6-0 lead and never trailed in the contest that saw eight Tiger players score in the non-conference contest.

Northwest tied the game up with 1:27 left in the third period. But in the fourth period the Tigers came up with a super offensive effort for the second night in a row. Friday night against Deepwater, the Bengals scored 30 points in the final period and Saturday night they topped that with 32 in the last period. Northwest pulled out all the stops, scoring 25 points themselves.

The game was decided on the boards with the Green Ridge height and depth advantage the key. Northwest made a big come back in the third period, while Mike Proffitt sat on the bench with foul trouble, but returned in the fourth quarter with Dove to commandeer the backboards.

The Mustang's Alan Meyer picked up 10 points from the charity stripe due to heavy Tiger fouling, but it was not enough as the Tigers are now off to their best start in several years.

In the jayvee contest, the Tigers remained undefeated after two games. They rolled over Northwest 51-19 in that encounter.

However, Northwest's powerful girls team, which captured a share of the conference crown last year, defeated Green Ridge in the power volleyball tilt, 2-1.

Varsity Scoring
Green Ridge (65) — Scotten 17, Harding 11, Ream 8, Risner 8, Proffitt 8, Purchase 8, Dove 5.
Northwest (54) — Meyer 24, Schroeder 12, Killion 10, Knight 3, Whisker 2.

Oswald: "Hamlet might well have soliloquized: 'To falsecard or not to falsecard; that is the question.'"
Jim: "With today's hand his soliloquy would be slightly different. It is almost automatic for South to falsecard with a high diamond. His problem is to decide which one will be most likely to get East to return his partner's suit and not make the killing shift to a spade."
Oswald: "South is looking at the two lowest diamonds so he knows that West has opened a four-card suit. East can't see those little cards and it is up to South to keep them hidden. This may lead East to assume his partner led from a six-card suit."

Jim: "The amateur falsecarder likes to falsecard with the highest card he can so the amateur would be likely to drop the queen. The semi-pro would probably drop the jack, but the pro drops the nine."
Oswald: "This play of the nine spot is typical of what is usually the best false-card. You make your play look as commonplace as possible."
Jim: "It certainly has the best chance of succeeding here. No guarantee goes with it. Any East should consider a spade return. This time it would be the winning play. Next time it might be a loser."

Ann Landers

salesman by phone

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going with a salesman who lives on the other coast. When I say "going with" I mean mostly talking to him on the phone. (My phone bills have kept me broke.) Ed gets out here only once every 60 days. We met twice in Kansas which is about halfway. I am 24, divorced, with one child.

For a while Ed sent me postcards. I have been phoning him every weekend all over the country. I write him a long letter every day. Two weeks ago I was supposed to phone him in Detroit. I called at exactly the time he suggested. He said he couldn't talk to me because he was "in a meeting." He asked me to call him the next night, same time, so I did.

Ed answered the phone. I started to speak but he tried to disguise his voice, and said, "You have the wrong room." I yelled, "Ed, this sounds like YOU." He replied, "It's not me. I'm not here."

Ann, that was 10 days ago and I haven't heard from him since. What do you think? — Completely Baffled

Dear Baff: I think when a man tells you he's not there, you ought to take his word for it. And don't throw out any more money on long-distance telephone calls. You've been permanently disconnected.

Dear Ann Landers: We live in an area that has had several break-ins. My wife asked me to buy a watchdog. I've heard that pigs are smarter than dogs and I'd like to try a watch-pig. Have you ever heard of this? Do you think my neighbors would mind? — Tallahassee Reader

Dear Tal: I don't know where you got the idea that pigs are smarter than dogs but I won't argue the point. Let's assume that a smart pig is smarter than a dumb dog, there are zoning laws that say you can't keep certain animals in residential areas. (I learned this when a reader wrote to complain about a neighbor who kept a Shetland pony in the kitchen and an alligator in the bathtub.) Personally, I'd rather hear "bow wow" around the house than "oink oink." Check the law before you go hog wild.

Dear Ann Landers: Should a woman who inherits money after she has been married a few years handle it herself or should this money be shared with her husband? My inheritance has created so much trouble between my husband and me that I wish to heaven I had never seen it.

I want to give a few sizeable gifts to the charities I believe in. My husband has asked me to hand the money over to him for "investments." When I refused we got into an argument and he hasn't spoken to me for two days. Finally, I told him I believe I have the right to decide what happens to the money that was left to me. He said, "It is not done that way in compatible families." What about it, Ann? You seem to have a compatible family. — Miserable Sally

Dear Sally: True, but we have no inherited money. In my opinion you should handle your inheritance as you wish and your husband should forget about it.

Confidential to Teeth On Edge And Going Berserk: You can't divorce a woman you've been married to for 35 years because she moves her lips when she reads. Find out what is REALLY bothering you and deal with the problem in a mature, rational manner.

Iran next Travel Series topic

Commander Karl E. Stein (ret.) who served as a commander in the U.S. Navy during World War II will present his film, "Intriguing Iran" and personally narrate its scenes on Tuesday, Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. at Smith-Cotton High School Auditorium, in the second program of the Travel and Adventure Series sponsored by the Sedalia Rotary Club.

Stein's adventurous background is in evidence in both his films and his lectures and his film study of Iran offers a good opportunity to display his talents.

His audience will see exciting Tehran, the nation's capital, emerging as a stimulating and vibrant city of the 21st century, while holding on to the culture of the past. He will show how the fabulous time-honored Persian carpets are created. Going to the Persian Gulf, his audience will learn about the oil resources and how they are refined and shipped in the world's largest tankers. Shiraz, city of poets, famous for its flowers, will be explored, including Persepolis with its ancient ruins and the tents where the 2,500th Anniversary

Cmdr. Karl E. Stein

Celebration was held. In Isfahan, the resplendent dome of the incomparable Shah

Mosque will be viewed from the top of the minaret and the exotic bazaars displaying fascinating handicraft will be visited. Through the mountain pass the audience will go to the Caspian Sea where fishing boats ply for Beluga sturgeon and will see caviar being extracted and prepared for gourmet palates. In the Golestan Palace all the splendor of the Middle East will be on display, along with the finest collection of jewels — the Royal Crown jewels — including the unsurpassed Peacock Throne encrusted with an infinite variety of precious gems. Stein's film will show how the people live, work and play in Iran.

Admission is by season ticket, or single admission may be purchased Tuesday evening at the door.

Women fugitives have baffled FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is baffled.

It hasn't a clue about the whereabouts of the three women who made the select "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives" list three years ago this October.

The women, all associated with what the Federal Bureau of Investigation calls revolutionary or New Left groups, have virtually disappeared, an FBI spokesman said.

"We've had hundreds, maybe thousands of leads," he said, requesting that his name not be used because he is working on the case. "But there's been nothing real good on them in the last year and a half."

Since the Top Ten list was first started in 1950, the average lapse between the time a fugitive is placed on the list and when he's caught has been 145 days.

The three are Bernardine Rae Dohrn, 31, who is sought for unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for mob action and violation of the federal anti-riot laws; Susan Edith Saxe and Katherine Ann Power, both 23, who were charged with a murder of a Boston police officer following a bank robbery.

Miss Dohrn was added to the list October 14, 1970. Miss Saxe and Miss Power were added three days later. In 1968, Ruth Eisemann-Schier became the first woman on the list after she was charged in the Barbara Jean Mackle kidnapping case.

Knife and Fork Club speaker
woman columnist

Clarissa Start Lippert, a feature writer and columnist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for 34 years, will be the featured speaker at the Sedalia Knife and Fork Club meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Mrs. Lippert retired from the Post-Dispatch in March, 1972, but still writes a weekly column, "The Happy Gardner," for the paper. She also is the author of four books: "God's Man," "When You're a Widow," "Never Underestimate the Little Woman" and "Look Here, Lord."

Her topic will be "Women of Missouri."

Tickets will be on sale until noon Thursday at Welch's Market, 410 South Barrett.

Gunshot wound
fatal for youth

FARMINGTON, Mo. (AP)—A 17-year-old Mineral Point youth died at a hospital here early Monday from a wound suffered in an accidental shooting at his home, police said.

The Washington County sheriff's office identified the victim as Walter Weir.

Police said he was shot once in the abdomen Sunday night as he was getting ready to go hunting. Weir was alone in a room of the house when the weapon discharged, authorities said.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sixteen persons lost their lives over the weekend in Missouri traffic accidents. All but four perished in mishaps that killed more than one.

There were two triple-fatality accidents Saturday, one near Sedalia, the other east of Kansas City.

Killed in a two-car accident on U.S. 65 near Sedalia were James Orell, 51, of the Kansas City suburb of Lake Lotawanna, Richard Rice, 49, and Betty Marie Quigley, 44, both of Kansas City.

Earlier Saturday, three persons died when their car went off U.S. 50 near Lone Jack and plunged down a ravine. They were David Breezley, 21, Susan Birgess, 18, both of Springfield, and Stanley Cauthen, 20, of Nixa, near Springfield.

Two elderly women died Sunday night in a two-car collision in downtown St. Louis. Authorities said they were Katie Reed, 75, and Minnie Kimball, 74, both of St. Louis. They were passengers in a station wagon.

Two St. Louis area men were killed earlier Sunday when their car ran off Interstate 70 south of Montgomery City and overturned. The highway patrol said they were Steven D. Thompson and John A. Grumke, both 18 and from St. Charles, Mo.

On Friday night, John Epperson, 18, and James Clayton, 17, New London, Mo., were killed in a one-car accident four miles south of Hannibal on a county road.

The other weekend victims, killed in separate accidents, were Donna Hatfield, 16, Doniphan, Mo.; Robert Kempa, 23, Hillsboro, Mo.; Clayton B. Wardin, 22, Nevada, Mo., and Patrick Conyer, 14, O'Fallon, Mo.

Reporter hurls
barb at White House newsmen

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Bob Woodward, who shared a Pulitzer Prize for a series of Washington Post articles detailing the Watergate affair, has hurled a barb at the White House press corps.

Woodward, coauthor of the investigative reports with Carl Bernstein, called White House newsmen "no more than sophisticated stenographers" with "an obscene affection for the official version of events."

"The Watergate has demonstrated that they were being lied to. And so these reporters have adopted what I would only characterize as a superficial toughness. They go to press conferences and think they're being great investigators by asking the President questions like, 'Don't you think you should resign?'" Woodward said.

He spoke Sunday to members of the Liberal party of the Yale Political Union.

Long-term
diuretic effects

Dear Dr. Lamb — Kindly comment on long term effects of diuretics. A national magazine commenting on reducing diets says they are very harmful, yet they seem to be freely used by physicians for high blood pressure and kidney malfunction.

Dear Reader — Even most good things in life are harmful if used too much or too often. Oxygen is essential for life, but too much causes oxygen toxicity and even death. Diuretics are wonderful medicines when properly used in optimal amounts in the right person who needs them. They can be harmful if used otherwise. There are lots of "scare reports" in the newspapers, a sort of medical equivalent of "McCarthyism," and such reports are usually "half-truths."

The main purpose of diuretics commonly used is to help the kidneys eliminate sodium found in salt — which in turn causes the body to release excess water that is held in the tissues. They seem also to have some further unexplained effect in lowering blood pressure to some degree.

When problems occur it is usually because too much salt has been removed, or a related problem, too much potassium salt has been washed out of the body. These problems are easily corrected. A good-sized glass of orange juice two times a day when taking diuretics usually helps protect against the loss of too much potassium.

Individuals have used diuretics for years without any difficulties as long as they are used properly and adequate efforts are made to prevent excessive depletion of sodium and potassium salt. I don't approve of their use for fat reduction programs, and they do not eliminate excess body fat.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please tell me what causes blackheads. My mother tells me it is from not washing your face properly and leaving soap on and drying it with a towel. Also, what could I use to get rid of them and pimples?

Dear Reader — Mothers like to sell well scrubbed faces, and it does help to prevent pimples and related problems. But, blackheads are not dirt. They are the normal oily or fatty secretions of the skin glands.

The plug of oil contains chemicals that turn black or brown on exposure to the air as a chemical reaction. If you look carefully at one after it is removed you will see that only the surface is discolored and the deeper plug is not.

The average problem is caused by excessive formation of oily secretions, and the problem is usually worse around puberty and in the teen years. The normal sex hormones that are formed in large amounts with the body changes predispose to excessive oily secretions.

It does help to wash the skin regularly with soap and water. Use a very warm cloth, and hold it over the skin area for a few minutes then bathe the surface and repeat. This helps to soften the waxy material, and it can often be washed away then. After you are through, wipe the skin carefully with alcohol. This also helps to remove oily material. This won't cure all the problems, but it helps in the mild cases. More serious problems should be treated by a skin specialist.

First frost need not end gardening

The first frost should not mean the last vegetable from the garden. Picked and stored properly, vegetables may be enjoyed for weeks or even months after being picked from the garden.

Among vegetables that can be successfully stored indoors without refrigeration are tomatoes, peppers, squash, pumpkins and sweet potatoes. Some vegetables may be stored successfully in cool cellars or outdoors pits. These include potatoes, carrots, beets, turnips and cabbage.

A few vegetables can be left in the garden, covered with mulch, and harvested as needed during the winter. These include parsnips, salsify, and horseradish.

Tomatoes can be stored for an additional four to six weeks of use. Harvest the mature green tomatoes just before the first killing frost. Those that are large and light green will ripen well in storage. Very small, immature tomatoes will not ripen well.

Mature green peppers can also be stored in the same way. Since they are more subject to drying, wrap them in plastic, or use small plastic bags. Peppers store best at temperatures between 45 and 50 degrees.

Pumpkins and squash may also be stored without refrigeration. Pick them carefully to avoid scratches or bruising. Allow the stems to remain attached. First place them in a warm room at temperatures from 80 to 85 degrees. If there is no other place available, a spot near the furnace may provide the proper temperature. Keep them at the warm temperature for about 10 days.

After that time, move them to a dry place where temperatures range from 50 to 60 degrees. Never store them where temperatures drop below 50 degrees. Acorn squash is an exception and can be stored as low as 45 degrees. In this way many squash can be kept until February. Do not pile squash in a tall box or basket. Spread them individually on a shelf for best storage.

Sweet potatoes may be kept until April or May. They also should be cured at 80 degrees for about 10 days. After that time store them where they have temperatures between 55 and 60 degrees.

Munich, Germany's 16-day Oktoberfest draws about five million persons who consume some 880,000 gallons of beer, 700,000 sausages and 500,000 roasted chickens. Oktoberfest is considered the biggest beer festival in the world.

Nixon impeachment supporters increase

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Approval of President Nixon's performance in office has reached a new low, and the percentage of Americans who want him impeached has increased, says the latest Gallup Poll.

Twenty-seven per cent of those polled approved of Nixon's performance in office, the second lowest approval percentage of any president since Gallup began its popularity polls during Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

The poll said 33 per cent believed Nixon should be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency.

The poll was taken Oct. 19-22, the weekend Archibald Cox was fired as the special Watergate prosecutor. The polling organization noted a marked difference in replies before and after Cox's firing.

The three-quarters of the survey completed before Cox's Oct. 20 dismissal showed 31 per cent approving Nixon's performance. In the interviews after the firing, 17 per cent approved of the way Nixon was doing his job.

Before Cox was fired, 30 per cent of those polled favored impeachment. After the firing, 45 per cent favored it.

The 1,583 adults surveyed were asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?"

In addition to the 27 per cent who approved, 60 per cent disapproved and 13 per cent had no opinion.

Those interviewed also were asked: "Do you think President Nixon should be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency or not?"

Thirty-three per cent replied that Nixon should be impeached and forced out of office, 52 per cent said he should not and 15 per cent had no opinion.

In an Aug. 3-5 poll asking the same question on impeachment, 26 per cent favored it, 61 per cent were opposed and 13 per cent had no opinion.

Nixon's popularity reached an all-time high of 68 per cent approval following the Vietnam peace settlement last January. It has declined steadily since then except for a slight rise in August after his Watergate speech.

The latest presidential popularity percentage is four points above the lowest figure ever recorded by the Gallup organization. That was the 23 per cent approval given President Harry S. Truman in 1951 during the Korean War.

CITY OF SEDALIA, MISSOURI
Ralph Dedrick, City Clerk

RESOLUTION No. 610
A RESOLUTION declaring it necessary to bring to the established grade all that part of Summit Avenue for the purpose of constructing and to construct a concrete curb and gutter on both sides of Summit Avenue from Saline Street to Booneville Street, all public streets within the City of Sedalia, Missouri, and providing for special assessments to adjoining property.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, as follows:
SECTION 1. The Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, finds, deems and declares it to be necessary to bring to the established grade all that part of Summit Avenue from Saline Street to Booneville Street for the purpose of constructing and to construct a concrete curb and gutter on both sides of said Summit Avenue all public streets within the said City of Sedalia, according to the plans and specifications to be prepared by the City Engineer of said City, and to be on file with the City Clerk of said City on or before the 1st day of November, 1973.

SECTION 2. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the curbing and guttering herein provided for shall include all curbs and gutters and all returns of said curb and gutter at all intersections of streets and alleys, if any.

SECTION 3. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the City Engineer of said City of Sedalia shall prepare plans and specifications for said work and improvements, together with an estimate of the cost thereof, and shall file the same with the City Clerk of said City of Sedalia on or before the 1st day of November, 1973.

SECTION 4. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the cost of said improvement shall be paid by special assessment against the lots and lands fronting or abutting on either side of said part of Summit Avenue, a public street within said city as aforesaid, to be so improved and on said improvements being completed, special tax bills shall be issued against said lots and lands chargeable with the cost of said improvement, and that the cost of bringing said part of said Summit Avenue to the established grade shall be included in the special assessment for the paying for and bringing of said street to the established grade and curbing and guttering all that part of said Summit Avenue in the City of Sedalia, in manner and form as hereinbefore set forth.

SECTION 5. BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this resolution be published for seven (7) consecutive insertions in the Sedalia Democrat-Capital, a daily newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said City of Sedalia, Missouri.

PASSED by the Council of the City of Sedalia, Missouri, on the 15th day of October, 1973.
JERRY N. JONES
President of the Council

APPROVED by the Mayor of said City on this 15th day of October, 1973.

Attacks on credibility anger Nixon's daughter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower is angry and fighting back.

About attacks on her father's credibility... speculation by some that he ordered U.S. forces on world-wide alert to divert attention from Watergate troubles... disbelief by some that two of the Watergate tapes don't exist... allegations about Nixon's friends... questioning of family finances.

These charges are "great tests of character and perseverance. But he's not going to let them get him down," Julie said.

On the day the alert was announced, Thursday, Oct. 25, she wrote in her appointment calendar, "Fight, Fight, Fight."

"That was really the day I decided," Julie said. "That angered me so much... Looking back on it now, it looks ridiculous, but that's exactly how I felt. I'm not going to sit by anymore."

And so Julie intensified her public defense of her father.

In an hour-long interview in the family's private White House quarters, Julie insisted that her father will not resign, that he has done nothing to warrant impeachment, that his health is excellent and that there's nothing irregular about the family's finances.

Sitting on a soft, daffodil-yellow sofa in the Solarium, the Nixons call their "California Room," 25-year-old Julie portrayed her father as a man more philosophical in recent weeks, thoughtful and gentle at home — yet still angry and frustrated that White House credibility is being challenged.

The President of the United States, she said, often sits at the piano alone at night, sometimes making up his own soft, melodic tunes, sometimes playing "Rustle of Springtime," his mother's favorite piece, to no one but himself.

"Sometimes, all alone at night, you'll hear this music in the hallway," Julie said. "I could sometimes hear the piano going, and I knew no one was in that darkened hall, and he'd play."

He's affectionate, "not the big hug, but kind of put his arm around my shoulder and pat me on the back, and you know, the 'we're-gonna-make-it' kind of thing which is nice," Julie said.

On national television and in other interviews, Julie's theme is that Richard Nixon has done nothing wrong, that he has nothing to hide.

What about threats of impeachment?

"I don't worry about it because I know my father hasn't committed a high crime or a misdemeanor," she said.

Does she speculate about how the whole Watergate situation will end?

"I think that before my father dies that there will be a perspective on Watergate, his achievements will be recognized..." she said.

Shooting scene

Policemen watch the Cleveland home of Cyril J. Rovanske Jr., 31, where he apparently went berserk Sunday shooting and killing seven persons, including his wife and two children, before killing himself. Rovanske, a nine-year veteran of the University Heights, Ohio, police force, reportedly shot and wounded a Cleveland policeman answering a disturbance call. He was listed in serious condition after undergoing surgery. (UPI)

Kelly says intrusion on freedom necessary

KANSAS CITY (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley said Sunday night that "any law enforcement agency's activities are an intrusion on some individual's total freedom."

"Any arrest is an intrusion, but a necessary one, to preserve the rights of individuals who are victims of those who threaten the safety and property of others," Kelley said.

The FBI chief was one of four guests appearing before some 550 persons at the Kansas City Press Club's annual Griddle Show. It being a homecoming of sorts to the city where he was police chief for 12 years. Kelley was not pushed onto the griddle by the panel as were the other guests—Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan, Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Mo., and Joseph D. McNamara, the former New York police veteran who just last week succeeded Kelley as Kansas City police chief.

Kelley, who received a standing ovation, expressed hope the FBI's new policy of "openness" would give an improved image of the bureau. "We feel that if the people know the truth, they will continue to give us their trust and support," he said.

The FBI, he said, had been falsely accused of usurping its authority. "I want to assure you the FBI is not violating civil liberties. We do not compile political dossiers. We do not violate constitutional procedures," he said.

Dole, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, said there are "enough questions not answered" about Watergate and related matters that warrant an investigation into whether impeachment proceedings should be undertaken against the President.

But he said, "I haven't lost my faith in the President yet."

More hospital-based ambulances in state

(Democrat-Capitol Service)

JEFFERSON CITY — More hospitals in Missouri are getting into the ambulance service business, according to Dr. Herbert R. Domke, director of the Missouri Division of Health.

"Eight hospitals have started operating ambulance services within the last 18 months," Dr. Domke said. "and ten more hospitals are prepared to begin services as soon as emergency vehicles now on order can be delivered."

"The eight new hospital-based ambulance services brought the state's total to 25 hospitals now operating emergency ambulances and all of them have begun their services since 1968," he added.

Dr. Domke noted that these 25 hospitals offer their services to more than 1.1 million persons living in one-fifth of the state's land area, including St. Louis City. He said an additional 122,000 persons living in a 4,800 square-mile area will be served by the 10 hospitals awaiting ambulances.

Domke called the rise of hospital-operated ambulances "the development of a new component in the health care system."

He cited the public demand for high quality emergency medical services in the recently-passed state ambulance licensing bill which will become effective on July 1, 1974.

Dr. Domke cited two reasons for the fast growth of hospital-based ambulance services: (1) Hospital personnel, especially those based in emergency rooms, have the advantage of working with health care problems in the hospital as well as transporting patients. (2) In rural areas, hospital-based services are more economical.

Dr. John K. Wallace II, director of emergency medical services for the Division of Health, explained that hospital-based ambulance operations costs are lower because hospital personnel can be used as drivers and attendants. When not making an ambulance run, he said, these persons are utilized in other functions of the hospital so all their working hours are productive.

Another economic advantage is that a hospital usually can provide dispatcher and bookkeeping services without hiring additional personnel, it was noted.

In addition to reducing operational costs, Dr. Wallace said the use of hospital staff as ambulance crews improves the quality of medical care at the scene of the emergency, en route to the hospital and at the hospital.

He also pointed out that the hospital base offers a built-in system of continuing training for ambulance personnel by the medical staff.

Dr. Wallace said statistics show ambulance services average about one call per day per 10,000 population.

Eagleton believes Nixon will resign

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said he believes President Richard M. Nixon may reach the conclusion that his resignation would be best for the United States.

Eagleton said here Sunday he believed Nixon will resign, in spite of his statements to the contrary, if he concludes he can no longer govern the nation.

Eagleton emphasized, however, that he was not calling for the president's resignation, as several others in Congress have done.

Alabama farmers planted a record high 819,000 acres to soybeans in 1973, exceeding 1972's plantings by 39,000 acres.

Chairman says GOP image must be changed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The current image of the Republican party must be changed, said GOP National Chairman George Bush here this weekend, but not because of the Watergate scandal.

"We have an image problem because we're somehow the rich, the exclusive, the closed party," Bush told Republican workers and officials. He said the party wanted more ethnic candidates to "put to lie this myth of exclusiveness."

Speaking at a "New Majority Workshop" sponsored by the Republican National Committee, Bush said he was confident the party will emerge unharmed from the Watergate scandal.

Watergate has turned many Americans away from politics, he said, adding that the reaction appears to be hurting the Democrats more than the GOP. Bush also pointed out that Republicans gained seats in Congress after the Teapot Dome scandal of President Warren G. Harding and Democrats in Illinois did not suffer losses because of the scandal surrounding former Gov. Otto Kerner.

"We're actually winning elections now," Bush noted, "and we're far better off than the Democrats in selecting a presidential nominee. We are getting excellent people who want to run as Republicans."

"A person who tries to run against a Republican candidate on the basis of scandal is going to get beaten," he warned. "We haven't seen any erosion yet. People are sorting out the party from the allegations that have been made. The Voters are fair."
